Dear Alex:

I am sorry to bother you at what must be a difficult time.

Given some of the developments circulating around the internet, I conducted a limited investigation, and to date, I see no reason to withdraw my support for you personally or minimize my desire to collaborate professionally. However, upon consultation with my advisors, we do agree that it would be prudent for you to step down from your role as a member of the EAC at the Manhattanville Center for Managing Risk while your attention is directed towards resolving matters. I hope that you agree and will do so voluntarily.

I am sure that things will be cleared up imminently and the truth (which I am confident will back you up) will emerge. I am in the process of reconstituting the center, anyway, with a different look and feel to the EAC, by which time I hope we will both be in a position to talk about a role that could hopefully involve even greater coordination between us.

Best,

Anthony
